USC Housing: Meeting Rooms

Introduction

Our Meeting Rooms:

USC Housing offers a variety of spaces to host meetings, programs, and events. These spaces are located in our residential facilities across campus, including one in the north campus areas. These rooms include a variety of amenities, depending on the location, such as audio/visual equipment, kitchenettes, pianos or simply tables and chairs. We've welcomed events ranging from training sessions, blood drives, and departmental mixers to student government meetings and classes taught by residential faculty.

Though the spaces are given priority to the respective residential complexes, we invite campus departments to consider booking them for their meetings. With our residents' class schedules, our weekday availability, we have more flexibility which is often when departments may need to reserve a meeting space. There is a nominal reservation fee to offset our costs, but you will find the charge aligns with other campus meeting spaces.

Amenities:

Several of our spaces are equipped with Multimedia Operations Management Systems (MOMS) similar to those found in many campus classrooms. These systems include a projector interface, screens, cable television, and Blu-ray DVD player. A few spaces also include Mondopads, which are large touch screens capable of running applications, collaborative presentations and video conferencing with another Mondopad.

Our kitchenettes are located between PRB Multipurpose Room and the PRB Performance Cafe, as well as the Troy Conference Room. Our kitchenette includes two ovens, a sink, refrigerator, microwave, counter space and cabinet space. All kitchenette usage requires prior approval.
